Insanity Expected To Be Mrs. Judd's Plea In Double Slaying

HUSBAND HINTS AT DEFENSE IN PHOENIX CASE

Authorities Seek Evidence to Tear Down Story Told by Suspect

Los Angeles—(AP)—Indications that insanity will be the basis of Winnie Ruth Judd's plea when she is called upon to answer for the killing of Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Anne LeRoi cropped out today as investigators began collecting evidence to contradict her story.

Dr. William C. Judd, the suspect's husband, gave what authorities considered an intimation of a change in the plans for a legal defense when he said, after visiting with his wife: "Her mind is wandering—she seemed to think she had been in her hospital room all last night."

In the county jail, Mrs. Judd was greeted by visitors excepting her husband and her attorneys, Richard Cantillon and Louis P. Russell. Cantillon was co-counsel for Marion Edward Hickman, murderer of Marion Parker, who was convicted and hanged. Hickman's defense was that he was "not guilty by reason of insanity."

A signed and copyrighted story by Mrs. Judd which her husband gave the Los Angeles Times related that Mrs. Judd shot Miss Samuelson Saturday morning, Oct. 17, in a scuffle over a pistol. She said she later killed Mrs. LeRoi when Mrs. LeRoi endeavored to strike her with an ironing board.

A quarrel over the introduction of an unidentified "new nurse" to a mutual friend of the three principals in the tragedy precipitated the scuffle for the pistol, according to Mrs. Judd.

Story Under Fire
Lloyd Andrews, county attorney at Maricopa-co, Arizona, in which Phoenix, scene of the double slaying, is located, said Mrs. Judd's story was "preposterous."

In Andrews' possession was a letter allegedly written by Mrs. Judd to her husband before her surrender Friday night which revealed a quarrel over a man as the motive for the slayings.

The letter was found in a downtown store where Mrs. Judd admitted hiding last Monday night shortly after the bodies of the two slain women were found in trunks at the depot here where they were sent from Phoenix.

Andrews also said he had witnesses who would testify they heard pistol shots the night of Friday, Oct. 16, after about 10:30 p. m. He charged the two women were shot as they lay in bed. Examination of the bodies was said to have disclosed powder burns, indicating the shots were fired at close range.

Most important of the facts—and the one on which Mrs. Judd indicated she would base her self-defense plea—was her wounded left hand, according to Andrews.

He said he had witnesses who would testify that Mrs. Judd appeared at the Grunow Memorial clinic in Phoenix on the morning of Oct. 17 and performed secretarial duty, displaying no banded hand. Other witnesses, Andrews declared, would testify that Mrs. Judd later appeared with her right hand banded. Andrews charged the wound in her left hand was self-inflicted to bolster her self-defense story.

Plans were under way to extradite Mrs. Judd to Arizona.

Photo shows Ex-Judge Lewis P. Russell, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, showing wounded hand, and Richard Cantillon, her other lawyer. Her husband, Dr. William C. Judd is shown in background, after Mrs. Judd had arrived at police station to surrender. Mrs. Judd has been searched for since Oct. 19 when trunks containing the bodies of two women were found in the baggage room of a Los Angeles, Calif., railroad station. The victims were later identified as Miss Hedvig Samuelson and her room-mate Mrs. Agnes LeRoi, friends of Mrs. Judd, who were employed in a Phoenix, Arizona hospital. The murder was committed in the women's cottage in Phoenix and Mrs. Judd is supposed to have shipped the trunks on her ticket to Los Angeles. Suspicion was aroused when she claimed the trunks, but she escaped from the station and has been hunted throughout the country since.

Great Western Road Pays First Dividends Since '19

Chicago—(AP)—It's "D" for dividends, not depression, on the Chicago Great Western railroad.

For the first time since 1919, this "bridge" for trunk lines has paid dividends, not depression, on the No. new money-making formulas were involved. Instead, there was a return to old-fashioned railroadroading, with one man in power. That man is Patrick H. Joyce, acting president and chairman of the executive committee, who gained control of the road in 1930 with a group of Chicago associates. Joyce supervises all expenditures, manages all operations.

The Great Western is a triangular "bridge" linking trunk lines with Chicago, the Twin Cities, Omaha-Council Bluffs, and Kansas City.

The Great Western has small offices, small staffs and—small overheads. There's a steady stream of subalterns into the Joyce office each day. And there's a reason for this close supervision. Joyce has a great share of his personal fortune invested in the Great Western.

The Great Western, under Joyce's control, has never received the benefits of good times. But at at outset, money was spent to make money.

Antiquated rolling stock and locomotives—and the Great Western had more than a plenty of these—were scrapped. Ninety-five engines went to the scrap heap; close to 4,000 freight cars were piled on top.

The five division points were cut to two. Thirty-six new locomotives were purchased. The new equipment cost close to $6,000,000.

But it paid for itself in elimination of repair costs. And money saved on these repairs was used to build up the roadbeds and trackage.

Many freight runs were abolished. In their place sped faster, more powerful freights.

"Things are picking up, I hear, on the Great Western"—was the gossip in financial and railroad circles. Things did pick up. The road shook off the shackles of economic uncertainty and earned $2.78 a share. It was the peak of Great Western history.

2 Senators Prepare For 2nd Debate

Sioux City, Iowa—(AP)—Senators L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, and Pat Harrison of Mississippi, today prepared for their second debate on the Smoot-Hawley tariff at Omaha, Neb., after having gained their breath Sunday following the verbal barrages laid down at each other here Saturday evening.

Both declared Sunday that they intended to stress practically the same issues in Omaha as they did here and made the point, one of the few they agreed on, that these debates were but the beginning of another long fight in congress on tariffs.

Being in the heart of the corn belt and talking before an audience which included many farmers and their wives, the arguments of both senators turned upon an agricultural pivot many times during Saturday night's debate.

Senator Dickinson maintained that

"a protective tariff is essential now when our products compete with those of other nations." Senator Harrison retorted by pointing out that while corn and oats sold for about 78 and 60 cents, respectively last year, they now sell for about half that. He demanded "equality of treatment for everybody."

Senator Harrison earlier had protested that the Smoot-Hawley measure protected industries that in turn were destroying the American people, that other nations were adopting retaliatory measures, and that its enactment last year precipitated the depression.

Senator Dickinson's reply was that the act was not responsible for changes in the amount of our foreign trade, that the depression is world-wide, that it protects the Democratic market, that the schedules were but the beginning of another long fight in congress on tariffs.

Director Recovering Harry Eiken, director of Green Bay vocational school, who has been critically ill at a hospital in Rochester, Minn., for the past three weeks, is recovering, according to word received here.

SEEK 1932 MEETING OF STATE WATER EXPERTS

The chamber of commerce is attempting to bring the annual convention of the Wisconsin section of the America Waterworks association to Appleton next year, according to Kenneth Corbett, chamber secretary. A telegram was sent to A. J. Hall, superintendent of the Appleton pumping station and filtration plant, at Racine Monday inviting the group here next year. The section is in convention at Racine today and Tuesday.

Erich Timm, 60, Weyauwega, was killed almost instantly Saturday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by M. B. Mahar, 240 N. Milwaukee-st., Milwaukee, on Highway 10, about three miles south of Weyauwega.

Mr. Timm had been walking to the home of his son-in-law, William Hertzfeldt, County Trunk U, to do the farm chores while the Hertzfeldt family was visiting in Milwaukee. At the intersection of Highway 10 with County Trunk U, he stopped to talk to a relative, Charles Timm of Auroraville. The latter had just driven on toward Weyauwega, when the victim started to cross the road. On seeing this, the car approached, and he struck backward. Mr. Mahar veered his machine into a ditch, but could not avoid striking Mr. Timm. The victim was taken to Weyauwega by Elmer Bandy of Wausau, but was dead before the Bandy automobile arrived in the village. Mr. Timm suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, a broken arm and leg, and several fractured ribs.

Chief Arthur Steenblock of Wauwageo, who arrived shortly after the tragedy occurred, said that it was clearly accidental and that no inquest would be conducted.

Mr. Timm was prominent in church and civic affairs. He was treasurer of St. Peter Lutheran church of Weyauwega, and before he moved to the town of Weyauwega, he was in the town of Weyauwega.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at St. Peter church by the Rev. Max Hensel, and burial will be in Oakwood cemetery at Weyauwega.

Survivors are the widow, two sons, Walter and Clarence Timm, and two daughters, Mrs. Erich Hertzfeldt and Mrs. William Hertzfeldt, all of the town of Weyauwega.

Frightened when another car shot through an arterial on Highway 55, Mrs. Weber lost control of her car. She was cut about the eye and the lower orbit was fractured. The car was badly wrecked.

COLLEGE BACK TO NORMALCY AFTER WEEKEND

Float and House Decoration Awards Announced at Homecoming Dance

The Lawrence college campus returned to normalcy today after the homecoming events over the weekend. The many alumni who returned to renew old friendships will carry with them for another year the memories of the dinners, teas, cozies, get-togethers, dances, parades and pep meetings, which were included in the homecoming celebration.

The annual homecoming dance Saturday evening, at which the awards for fraternity and sorority decorations and floats were announced, marked the close of the homecoming program. Lisa Fuser and her band from New York furnished the music and the dance was attended by about 300 couples. Alexander gymnasium was decorated with silhouettes of the various college buildings. Indirect lighting was used and a central hall with its whirling, colorful reflections made the waltzes popular.

The awards presented at the dance follow: Fraternity floats—first place, Delta Iota; second, Delta Sigma Tau. Sorority and dormitory floats—Ormsby hall, first; Kappa Alpha Theta and Alpha Chi Omega, honorable mention. Delta Sigma Tau received first place for their fraternity float, while Beta Sigma Phi placed second. Peabody hall won the loving cup for dormitory decorations. Harold Sperka, Oshkosh, was chairman of the dance committee.

Starts Friday Night
The homecoming celebration began Friday evening with a short dance, a pep meeting, and a torch light parade, concluded by the lighting of a huge bonfire on the campus.

At 10 o'clock Saturday morning the annual homecoming parade marched down college avenue. The feature attraction of the homecoming program, the football game with Ripon college, took place Saturday afternoon at Whiting field.

Open house was held at Russell Sage dormitory directly after the game. Refreshments were served and the entertainment for the guests. Alumni were entertained by the various fraternities and sororities at dinners and "get-togethers" Saturday evening.

The dance at Alexander gymnasium Saturday evening concluded homecoming activities.

IDEAL WEATHER ON MENU FOR HUNTERS
Duck hunters probably will be the only group to welcome predictions of the weatherman for the next few hours. With only a week left to hunt, nimrods hope to get a few breaks in the line of weather.

Showers are on the menu for Appleton and vicinity for Monday night and Tuesday, he says. Rain has been predicted throughout the middle-west, and with a little rough weather ducks probably will head into feeding grounds along the shore.

Thus far ducks have been finding enough food in open water away from the guns of hunters.

Winds are shifting in the east, a good indication that rains will fall. At 6 o'clock Monday morning the mercury registered 40 degrees above zero, and at noon it registered 58 degrees above.

RESERVE OFFICERS MEET TUESDAY NIGHT
A meeting of Appleton chapter of the Reserve officers' association is scheduled for 7:30 Tuesday evening at the armory. Plans for all activities of the organization will be made. Lieut. T. E. Nistris is president.

BIRTHS
A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hietpas, 602 Wisconsin-st., Kaukauna, at St. Elizabeth hospital Sunday.

A daughter was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lauer, 708 W. Lorraine-st. burial was in Riverside cemetery. Bearers were Carl Blake, Andrew Striegel, George and Herman Sievert, William Retza, and August Schroeder.

MRS. ALICE MAY HILLMAN
Mrs. Alice May Hillman, 54, wife of William C. Hillman, member of the Appleton fire department, and daughter of the late Elmer Anderson, chief of the fire department, died Monday morning. ## TWO PAY FINES FOR OPERATING WITHOUT PERMITS

Ira Kimball and William Dorn, town of Menasha residents, were fined $50 and costs each by Judge Silas Spengler in municipal court at Oshkosh this morning when they pleaded guilty of operating soft drink parlors without licenses. The two men were arrested in separate raids conducted Saturday night by the Winnebago-sheriff's department. It was said at the sheriff's office at Oshkosh this morning that the raiders found bars in the basements of the Kimball and Dorn homes. They said the men were conducting business there without licenses. Kimball and Dorn live on Highway 41, just after the turn from Cherry-st. in Winnebago-co.

ing grain rates was advanced today for hearing on Nov. 30.

The railroads argued that the order, issued in July, 1930, and modified in April, 1931, would reduce their revenue not less than $20,000,000 yearly.

They claimed the commission based its action upon an erroneous conception of its authority under the Interstate Commerce act. A three judge federal court upheld the commission.

Weed's Out Petitions
The supreme court strode into the field of new petitions before it to weed out some of the cases presented and mark others which it will let ripen into decisions.

For those it tossed aside, the decision of the highest lower court will stand. The ones that went on its docket will be considered a decision probably will be handed down at some future date.

Among the requests for reviews it passed upon were:

Granted: the appeal of the Southern railway and Secretary Mellon from the decision of Kentucky courts sustaining state franchises during the period of federal control. The case was set for argument on Nov. 30.

The attempt of the Oregon insurance commissioner to have set aside a federal court ruling prohibiting him from charging insurance agents a $300 license fee.

Refused: Claim of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., that its patent for X-ray tubes was infringed by the General Electric company and the Victor X-ray Corporation.

The claim of the widow and son of Christian Knudson to land owned by him on Hamilton-co. Neb. The widow and son live in Norway.

The United States Fidelity and Guaranty company to test out whether Dr. Wilton McCarthy of Des Moines, Iowa, was entitled to a rating of total disability of an accident insurance policy.

The deportation proceedings against Nichola Ranter of Hurley, Wis., for conducting a disreputable house.

Recovery Follows Discovery of Bacterial Cause of Disease

Indianapolis—All who suffer with Bronchial Asthma will be interested in letters written by Mollie W. Mahan of Lyons, Illinois. The first, dated December 1, 1927, says in part:

"I was night before I received Dr. Fugate's Remedy I came so near dying I can't explain how I ever got through the night. For the past two years I have not been able to draw a deep full breath without a terrible rattle in my throat. I had coughed until I thought I would die. I had taken shots in my arms until they made me so sick I had to stop and tried everything I heard of and had no relief. After the first two or three days of taking your medicine I began to feel much better. Today I can breathe deep full breaths without a sign of rattle or cough. I thank God with your help for my life today."

NOTICE W. MAHAN.
A year later she wrote: "Dr. Fugate's Remedy has been such a blessing to me I want all who suffer with Asthma to use it. I recommended it for a man who was sent to the Cook County hospital to die with Asthma. He was given one bottle of Dr. Fugate's Remedy and is now able to work."

In September, 1931, she wrote that she was still well and happy. Copies of similar letters, together with an important booklet on Dr. Fugate's discovery of the cause of Asthma and Hay Fever, will be sent free by The Fugate Co., Dept. 7502, 124 S. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind. No matter how serious your case, write for this free booklet.

State Barbers Ask Advisory Board to Make Investigation

The state advisory board of barbers is asked, in a resolution adopted at a meeting of the executive committee of the Wisconsin Journeymen Barbers' association here yesterday, to take steps to raise the standards for barber apprentices in Wisconsin.

In addition to the five members of the executive committee at the meeting at Hotel Northern yesterday, there were 15 other barbers present from Kenosha, Madison, Green Bay and Racine. During the discussions it was brought out that the barbers desire to have the term of apprenticeship raised from two to four years. They also hope to have all apprentices indentured. It was brought out that all apprentices in other trades in the state are indentured and that barbers feel their apprentices should be given this service. The barber apprentices would be indentured by the state industrial commission.

The meeting yesterday was called by W. E. Smith, Appleton, president of the state association. Other members of the executive committee are: Waldo Russell, Madison, first vice president; George H. Hingston, Racine, second vice president; George Feller, Green Bay, third vice president; and Lester J. LeRoy, Kenosha, secretary and treasurer.

Speakers were H. G. Noyes, Appleton, a member of the state barbers' advisory board, and M. M. Hansen, an instructor at the Appleton Vocational school.

ASKS OBSERVANCE OF NAVY DAY HERE
Proclamation Issued This Afternoon by Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

A proclamation asking the citizens of Appleton to observe in a fitting manner the tenth annual observance of Navy day on Tuesday, the birthday of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, was issued this morning by Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

The proclamation reads: "The tenth annual observance of Navy Day will be held on Oct. 27, the anniversary of the birth of our beloved ex-President Theodore Roosevelt. No better day could have been selected than the birthday of this great outstanding American citizen."

"It is, therefore, only proper that we should dedicate this day to this double purpose; the memory of the sacrifices made by those of our navy who 'go down to the sea in ships' in defense of our flag and country, and in memory of that great president and statesman, Theodore Roosevelt."

The flag should be displayed in all public places; patriotic societies hold appropriate meetings and let the children of our public schools be told the interesting story of the glory of our navy and the wonderful achievements of our beloved Theodore Roosevelt."

ANALYZE PROFITS OF FIRM BEFORE BUYING ITS BONDS

New York Law Has Strict Requirements Regarding Purchases by Banks

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
(Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)
New York — To be a legal investment for savings banks in the state of New York, the law of which may be accepted as a standard in this respect, a public utility bond must be the obligation of a corporation supplying gas or electric service and the income of which for at least 75 per cent of the whole must come from such gas and electric service and not from any other activity. Many public utilities engage in collateral lines of trade and many of them make additional profits thereby but the law, assuming that the gas and electric business is least apt to suffer from trade depressions or from social changes, demands that three-fourths of the earnings come from those two sources.

For the individual investor the lesson is the need of analyzing the proportion of revenues that accrue to a company from the activity that gives it a utility classification. It is also provided in the law that to be eligible as legal investments bonds must be obligations of a corporation subject to regulation by a public service commission of one kind or another. The theory is that such investments are safer because the business is regulated, by the state. Or if not, that the assumption is that financial statements can be relied upon with greater assurance if there is public regulation.

The comparison at once arises of the public utility with the railroad. No industry is subject to such stringent regulation as transportation by rail and yet the regulation does not seem to have met the test of safety to the investor in the present crisis. It has provided accurate information in great detail as to the operations and earnings of the railroads, but has admitted no responsibility for maintenance of those earnings at levels sufficient to attract capital. Railroad supervision is extended primarily by the Federal government and utility regulation is by the various states. Theoretically national regulation ought to be more satisfactory to all parties concerned. It is not easy to make a case for the necessity of including this provision for regulation in a law designed to limit institutional investments to highest grade of securities but it is there nevertheless.

LAND APPRAISERS TO MEET AT ALMA

Will Value Property on Which Government Dam Will Be Built

Madison—(AP)—The land appraisers appointed by the federal court in the government dam project at Alma, Wis., which is the third of the series planned by the war department in its aim to aid Mississippi navigation by maintaining a nine-foot channel will hold their first meeting at Alma next Wednesday.

Only a few Wisconsin residents have property on the site that the government needs but there is a great batch of the 120 acre total on the Minnesota side of the river and the whole community is interested. The condemnation proceedings are expected to be out of the way so that work on the lock construction can start the first of December.

The Frank Waltons and other conservationists, proclaiming their interest in the preservation of wild life as well as navigation on the river has considerable misgivings about the channel project. They fear that the serious problem of erosion—the natural washing of soil from the farm lands into the river bed—will jeopardize navigation and destroy wild life if it is not conquered. They want the problem of erosion, river pollution and navigation considered jointly.

The Walton League members less than a month ago gathered up a group of federal officials and other conservationists and toured the upper Mississippi from Dubuque, Ia., to Winona, Minn., to diagnose the ailments that afflict the old river. All along the route they viewed the scarred expense of agricultural lands where the soil by many millions of cubic yards had been wasted away by nature.

Resulting from that survey was a suggestion by Dr. Raphael Zon, director of the lakes states division of the federal forestry service that it would be a good idea to utilize about $1,000,000 of the money allotted by congress for the Alma project to further erosion control work.

Warrior Whose Spirit Saved Verdun Heads French Group

Paris—(AP)—A white-haired warrior of 75, whose crisp commands saved Verdun, heads the French delegation to the Yorktown celebration October 16 to 19.

That spirited soldier is Marshal Henri-Philippe Petain, former commander-in-chief of the French armies and now general inspector of France aerial defense.

Among the group to take part in the observance of the one hundredth fiftieth anniversary of the defeat of Cornwallis' red coats by the American revolutionary forces are other distinguished officers of the French army and navy.

Included also in the party are five descendants of soldiers who were members of Rochambeau's forces during the Revolutionary war.

The alert leader of the delegation made his mark as a warrior during the World War through the commands by which he spurred his men.

In 1916 when the French army fought with its back to the walls of Verdun and half a million enemy at its throat, his slogan, "They shall not pass!" cracked like a whip over the heads of his wearied troops. They rallied, charged, then held their ground.

Tall, blue-eyed, white-haired, Petain at 75 is as active as a man of 50.

THE BLACKMER CASE

A short news item last week announced that the federal supreme court would review the case of Harry M. Blackmer, the self-exiled oil millionaire who precipitously left the country and journeyed to France almost a decade ago when the evil doings of the Fall-Sinclair-Doheny combination were brought to light.

Investigation shows that the court merely consented to review the appeal of Mr. Blackmer from the government's action in seizing $100,000 worth of his bonds because he would not answer a subpoena served upon him abroad and return to this country to testify, although he was offered sufficient money to cover all his expenses.

For a long time state and national lines have provided a bothersome problem in the everlasting struggle against criminals of all hues, now as never before fortified with golden lined pockets, and alert to all avenues through which the law may be thwarted or outwitted.

The authority of a state stops abruptly at its boundary. It cannot reach its arm out beyond that line in order to force the attendance of witnesses at criminal trials.

A defendant coming up for trial at Appleton who can induce a pivotal witness to take a vacation at Menominee when the trial is due to take place effectively checkmates the state.

And the witness who leaves the country is able to prevent the prosecution in a federal case from proving the crime.

This helpless condition has continued for generations during which the various state and national governments had to admit themselves powerless. It seemed to be a situation that simply could not be helped.

But when Blackmer and O'Neill (and O'Neill has since died abroad) sailed to France rather than be called as witnesses, Senator Walsh of Montana, a man of talent and capacity, went to work.

He devised a law providing for the service of subpoena abroad by American consuls and although this does not physically force attendance, the American court is given authority to fine the witness for contempt of court up to $100,000 and levy upon his property in payment of the fine if he fails to answer the subpoena.

This may seem like mere retaliation without results except against the witness.

In all probability, however, this law will become a practical measure for the witness must either come back or make an expatriate of himself and see, meanwhile, his property whittled away in this country and himself despoiled of it.

The effective operation of this law is based upon a sound knowledge of human nature. The first few months of the trip to France may be glorious, but home is home and hard-fibered indeed is the man who doesn't yearn for it with a desire that will even risk punishment and exposure in order to obtain it.

New York, recognizing the merit in Senator Walsh's measure, adopted it to govern state trials and now finds the first opportunity to use it. A man with a modest income has been found transacting business of over a million dollars and the Seabury commission is curious to ask him some questions. But he has taken a strange antipathy towards New York and become extremely fond of Mexico. He too is to be subjected to the Blackmer treatment.

The assault upon this law in the Blackmer case concerns its constitutionality. In the interests of the administration of justice it may be fervently hoped that the supreme court will uphold it. If upheld it will become in time a part of each state's law and a powerful weapon in getting at the truth.

A SOUND DOLLAR

There has been an apparent and perhaps purposeful attempt in certain sections of Europe to cast discredit upon the American dollar. Fear that the United States' standard of value might go the way of the English pound made some headway and caused a considerable amount of foreign capital to be withdrawn from dollar investments in this country; a situation partly responsible for the withdrawal of almost five hundred millions of our gold reserve since September 20.

The organization of the National Credit Corporation to extend additional credit to banks holding good but unmarketable securities offered an opportunity for unfriendly European financial circles to raise the cry of inflation in dollar credits.

To answer these critics an unofficial ambassador from the United States suddenly appeared before the Bank of International Settlements in Geneva and made a notable exposition of United States' finances before the governors of the ten central banks of Europe.

This man was the tall, youthful Randolph Burgess, vice-governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

From all reports it is apparent that he succeeded in convincing his hearers that any attempt to beat down the value of the dollar could only result in disaster to the beaters.

The recent "flight from the dollar" occurred principally in Poland and France. That the tide has again turned as the result of Mr. Burgess' statements is evidenced by the sound and pressing demand for dollars in the streets of Warsaw and the repurchase by France within the past few days of bankers' acceptances to the amount of forty million dollars.

With four and a half billions of gold still in the vaults of United States banks, any foreigner hoping for profits from a possible depreciation in the value of the American dollar, is surely monkeying with a buzz saw.

BANDITRY

Criminals have often prospered through direct connivance and conspiracy with officers or officials sworn to the purpose of crushing them.

That is not the difficulty in Wisconsin.

Here we are following an extraordinary piece of political eccentricity, something like the wild ritual of a queer cult.

If Senator John J. (Cossacks) Blaine, its originator, were divested of his present political strength and attempted election upon his stand on this political issue, the very folly of his position would cause the people to laugh him out of countenance.

Other issues entirely have elected him to office and because he originated the Cossack argument one night while he was looking for something to make the people shudder, many other good men in the Progressive ranks who have much more ability and intellect have just let the matter swing along and go its bewildering course.

So far as the bandits are concerned they are better off than if they corrupted officers.

They keep the bribes and get the same results.

THE OPEN ROAD

Tax experts of the United States government are diligently working on many different proposed sales taxes in order to submit to the next congress plans which will bring in large amounts of revenue to supplement the income of the government.

Congress will have to answer an old, old question: Who shall pay?

Shall sales of automobiles be taxed as formerly? Radios? Luxuries generally?

Shall postage rates be increased? The tobacco tax raised? Income taxes increased?

Every proposal made so far finds some opposition.

Everyone wants every other one to pay the tax.

There is one sales tax, however, that may be levied and will produce hundreds of millions, and not a single opponent will be found among those who pay the tax.

The beer tax.

Shipbuilding Problem

The United States government will, in the next 30 months, construct 10 destroyers, small, swift ships of 1,500 tons. They will be built at a cost of about $49,500,000.

The wholesale business of the U. S. amounts to $70,000,000,000 a year, the U. S. Census Bureau announces.

It takes 480 janitors to keep the Empire State building in New York clean

Stockholders of American corporations pay nearly $1,200,000,000 a year in income taxes.

THERE were dead flies all over the office Saturday . . . by the dozens and dozens . . . and all because one of them didn't have better judgment . . . it got to be so swell from the standpoint of weather on Saturday that all the flies came out for an airing . . . as usual, we were working our head off . . . oh yeah . . . and one of the darned things (flies, Tulle, not heads) came zooming by . . . we waved it away . . . back it came much closer this time . . . again we waved . . . then it circled back and sat down on our ear . . . plopp . . . we swung again . . . tinkle, tinkle, crash . . . the glasses went gently to pieces on the floor . . . up until then everything had been fine . . . it was such a swell day outside that we were even willing to let the flies have themselves a time . . . but not any more . . . their bodies are piled knee-deep in the office and new victims are still being added . . .

Probably the best excuse we can think of just now is: "No, I haven't learned to play contract bridge yet. I'm waiting until everyone gets agreed on a system."

At least Mr. Culbertson and his wife are going to play against the experts from the "Official" system. Hope somebody gets something settled.

The proceeds go to charity, too.

Gosh, the oceanic fliers just don't get any consideration these days. One of them who tried to hop the Pacific a while ago recently had to go to jail to serve a sentence for drunken driving was placed on him just before he flew. It's a far cry from the days of Lindbergh.

That incident down at Annapolis is funny, even if a lot of people did get sore. You remember that Prexy Hoover went down there not long ago on his way to the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration. Well, the mayor of Annapolis and a whole flock of local notables went out to greet the Hoover party as it drove into town and tried to ride back with it.

But somebody slipped. The Hoover party, knowing nothing about the arrangements, went roaring past the greeters without so much as a beep of the horn.

The mayor got mad. His assistants got mad. They wrote letters. They felt like a bunch of hitch-hikers. Tsk, tsk.

Al Capone has very decided opinions in regard to the pronunciation of his name. It, Al insists, does NOT rhyme with "baloney."

But when Al got what was due him, we dunno but what baloney is as good a word as the next.

Promise

We hereby solemnly swear not to take in any facetious terms about any styles which the ladies may affect for at least a month. Yessir, yesterday we saw a high school lad running around the streets in an outfit like this—black and white sport shoes, bright blue golf socks, grey checked knickerbockers, a blazing red jacket and a blue beret. He looked like he just fell off a Christmas tree. And to think we razed the Empire Hats.

Tomorrow we'll tell you whether our football expert is a prophet or a bum.

THE LITTLE FELLOW

Just a little fellow, bright as he can be, Growing, so the neighbors say, more and more Much too young for questioning things I do and say; Very proud of daddy in his happy, childish way; Wanting to be like him and very apt to be— Guess I'd better hide my faults where he cannot see.

Growing like his daddy! There beyond a doubt Is a serious matter I should think about. All my traits he'll copy; everything I do Soon or late, it's certain, he'll be trying, too. Trusting me to show him the way to go, What if I mislead him? How is he to know?

Just a little fellow—much too young to see All the whims and follies that are spoiling me. If I do a wrong thing while he's near at hand, My regret which follows he won't understand. Growing like his daddy—and just a little lad, But a serious problem for his doting dad. (Copyright, 1931, Edgar A. Guest)

NOW FOR A SHOWDOWN!

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

EARLY RECOGNITION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Fifteen years ago I received quite a few letters from foolish parents who had a child, usually a daughter, who was "not strong" and wished to know what I thought about giving the frail child Father Shyster's Wood Tonic, or Dr. Fossil's Old Reliable Remedy or the remedy that cured some far off testimonial writer or even tubercle-buncombe. Times change. Such inquiries rarely filter in these days. But in the past five years I have received too many inquiries about the lost health of young women who have reduced to well if not wisely. Whenever I touch on the subject of tuberculosis or its treatment I receive several letters from readers who are patients in a hospital and who want to tell the history of their own misdeeds and of the carelessness, inefficiency or neglect shown by the doctor or doctors they first consulted.

In a tabulation of the history of 3,300 tuberculosis cases Ehrenreich found that in a majority of cases the patients did not consult a doctor until they had been in poor health from three months to a year! In that period most of them were content to experiment with something recommended by a kind druggist or something suggested in an advertisement. Now even if all these patients had some promptly to their regular physicians for examination and I advice in the first three to twelve months of impaired health, it is entirely likely that a good many of them would have come away from the interview with the doctor a few dollars poorer but not much wiser, for when all is said and done the diagnosis of pulmonary tuberculosis in the incipient stage demands a good deal of courage on the part of the physician, as well as skill. The diagnosis is a matter of the doctor's opinion, not a question of fact. Before the doctor can risk it he must have some assurance that the patient puts confidence in him; he must weigh the patient's mentality and decide whether the patient is intelligent enough to accept the opinion of a great many patients in that stage of the disease lack the confidence in the physician and the intelligence to accept the doctor's opinion after they have asked for it and paid for it. If he says the trouble is tuberculosis in his judgment, the patient is quite likely to listen to various friends, neighbors and soon box specialists who assure him it is no such thing.

If the diagnosis of incipient or first stage tuberculosis is difficult, how much greater is the doctor's problem in dealing with the pre-tuberculous state, the stage when there are no definite signs, not even significant symptoms, but just malaise, fatigue, "run down condition," tired feeling, nervousness, capricious appetite, usually distaste for fats, anemia "catarrh" tendency to "catch cold" easily but no cough, perhaps just a desire to clear the throat mornings, some loss of weight or failure to gain weight. At least a careful and complete health examination is in order for any young person answering the description. Parents of a daughter in the pre-tuberculous state would do well to place her under a regime like that which most certainly aids recovery from active tuberculosis. Such a regime may be followed in many sanitariums, health resorts or at home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Chronic Rhinitis

I am 17 and in school. I find trouble in announcing correctly due to my nose becoming clogged. . . (C. A. G.)

I want to thank you for the formula for chronic rhinitis. It has given me more relief than my family doctor and two nose and throat specialists did. We are fortunate to have a man with courage to denounce. . . (C. B.)

Answer—C. A. G. should send his name and address on a stamped envelope and ask for instructions for the treatment of chronic rhinitis—or "catarrh" if that means anything.

No Authority
I feel it my duty to call to the attention of the health authorities the unsanitary conditions in school. . . My son, aged 7, complains that the toilet room there has no soap, no means of washing, no towels—and yet the health authorities teach that children should wash their hands. . . (C. P. L.)

Answer—You should indeed bring the improper conditions to the attention of your local health authorities. I have no such authority. Is there no parent-teacher organization in your community to correct such dangerous conditions?

We Put a Man On His Feet
I wish to thank you for your prescription of calcium lactate for headaches. My mother no longer suffers with them, so now I don't have to walk on my tip toes. (B. K.)

Answer—Oh, I'm willing to take it for granted that readers are grateful for any helpful advice we happen to give 'em. What I wish is that when they write in to tell about it they'd give a brief synopsis of the case, so that I may make some practical deductions which may be helpful to other people.

Castor Oil for Warts
Mark up another tally for castor oil as a killer of warts. Here several on both hands. Applied castor oil each night for about a week. Now they're all gone. Our plant physician says Brady has some good dope but he is all wet about absorption thru the skin. He said if it weren't for giving the plant a bad name he'd take up your challenge and apply some aniline to your skin—but you'd probably die and get the plant in for much notoriety. (J. H.)

Answer—Well, if the doctor is not just bluffing he might swipe a can of aniline and take it away off somewhere, wherever he prefers to perform the experiment, and I'll join him there, with our seconds and everything all complete. Then if he kills me I'll never say another word about the impermeability of the human skin. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individuals are not considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

The Tynmites

By Hal Ochoira

THAT instrument you're looking at is really rather strange, at that, replied the kindly Travel Man. "But it is sweet to hear. Why I could hark to one all day. I'll tip the man so he will play. Now, if you want to watch him, all you Tynmites gather near."

"First tell us what they call it. Gee, how it makes music I can't see," said Clowny. Then the Travel Man said, "It's a miramba, son. With those long sticks he taps the thing and that's what makes the clear notes ring. It's rather hard to play it, though it looks like lots of fun."

And then he tipped the man and said, "We want some music. Go ahead and show the boys what you can do. Perhaps they'll dance, or sing." So, right away the man began. Across the board his long sticks ran. The low notes sounded just like "pong," the high notes just like "ping."

One song was finished. Then the man said, "Do a dance step, if you can." He started in to play against and Clowny cried, "Watch me!" He did a tap dance very quick. The man exclaimed, "Say, that was slick! I like to play for you, son. You're as clever as can be."

The others tried some dance steps, too. The Travel Man then said, "Well, you have had enough of this, boys. Now let's make a trolley ride. A strange old engine pulls a car, and though it doesn't travel far, I'm sure that you will all enjoy the trip when once it's tried."

They found the engine right nearby and Copy shouted, "My, oh my! That surely is a funny sight. Here's where we have some fun." "Hop on," the man who ran it roared and they all the Tynmites hopped aboard. They heard a funny chug, chug. Then the car began to run. (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

(The Tynmites see another unusual sight in the next story.)

A Bystander

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — Even now, months before political convention time, one hears gossip in the capital as to what two men will be chosen by the parties to sound the keynote in the 1932 campaign.

That it will be a super-man's job is admitted by both democrats and republicans.

A keynote should be an Adonis in appearance and silver-tongued in voice. He should deliver a masterpiece of diction which embodies the acme of achievement and promise, sounding phrases which are pleasing to the "extremes." And he must praise party performances as well as defend its delinquencies.

It is a large order, but before the steam rollers of the conventions start to move, a man to meet these requirements must be found. The hunt now is on.

Potential Keynotes

Among the democrats the names of Joe Robinson of Arkansas and Jack Garner of Texas are mentioned. Both are their party's leaders in congress and have fought where the battle was the hardest.

When geographic equation comes into the selection, the name of Senator Bulkley of Ohio is heard as well as that of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois. There is also Senator Wagner of New York, author of unemployment relief legislation.

And there are a number of other potential keynotes for the democrats. Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Gov. George White of Ohio, former Governor Byrd of Virginia, former Secretary of War Baker, and Senator Walsh of Montana are among them.

Tyndings of Maryland, chairman of the party's senatorial campaign committee in the last two campaigns, is a possibility, and then there are the two party whips in congress—Shapard of Texas and McDuffie of Alabama.

Among the republicans Senator James Watson of Indiana stands out. He has fought the battles of the administration in dogged fashion. If party loyalty and service be the controlling factor in the selection, then Watson must be included.

Hurley's Possibility

Then there's Patrick Hurley, secretary of war, sometimes described as "the fair-haired boy of the administration's inner circle." Ambassador Davies might be called on, and Young "Teddy" Roosevelt, regarded by some as a coming fixture of the republican party, is talked of. Senator McNary of Oregon, assistant leader of the senate, is another. Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who never tires of leading young "Turks" in the senate, also figures in the conversations.

The name of Calvin Coolidge is even mentioned. Certainly if the President could be persuaded his presence as a keynote might bring to the republican convention a harmonious note much to be desired.

than the average successful American business man will admit.

Getting your neck broken in an automobile is an accident; getting it broken in a college football game is a privilege.

A dry organization is about to spend $100,000 to save prohibition for posterity. Well, if something isn't done, posterity may not have any liquor at all.

SEE EXTENSION OF RECOVERY IN STOCK MARKET

Small Volume of Trading Makes Conclusions Unsafe, However

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—
Because of the extremely small volume of trading, it is unsafe to draw conclusions from the movement of prices in the current stock market. The turnover last week on the average was slightly above that of the week before, but still too light to indicate any real trend.
About all that can be said is that individual stocks advance more readily than the list as a whole gives way. This may be due to the disfavor in which the exchange authorities are understood to hold short selling in these times. A courageous pool manager knows he has less to fear from raiding bears now than at any time in the past two years and here and there one of them takes advantage of the situation. This leaves the market outlook uncertain, even more uncertain than it was a week ago. The bear movement has continued so long and there have been so many unfulfilled predictions that the low had been touched that the average trader is wary of accepting any new prophecy. Probably more of them at the weekend were skeptical than were optimistic.

Situation Is Changed
This is a change from the situation seven days ago, but in the meantime the interstate commerce commission's decision in the railway rate case has upset calculations. The market showed it was disappointed at the ruling, probably unjustifiably so, but disappointed none the less.

The recovery of Friday was not due to any revised opinion about the effect of the decision, even supposing the roads accept it in principle as they have indicated they will, but to hopes aroused by the report that train service employees of one southern road had agreed to a voluntary wage reduction. Correctly or incorrectly, wage readjustment amicably brought about would be hailed in Wall Street as the most constructive development for the railways that could come about, outside of a definite upturn in car loadings.

This much said, it is still true that the experienced minority, composed of market followers who have seen more than one depression, express confidence in the future. They base their view now, as they did last week, on the indications of trade revival which they insist, are numerous enough to command respect. The quarters from which the most hopeful reports come is the merchandising field and it has been the store and distributive stocks which have stood up most consistently in the week's irregular price movement.

Await Consumptive Rise
This faction resolutely puts aside expectations based on any artificial aid to the market, or even to trade itself. It is admitted that much good may come from the administration's efforts toward straightening out the banking situation and from the conferences in Washington between the president and the French premier. They pin their faith entirely to a revival of consumptive demand, the beginnings of which they profess to see and which, when it comes, will give stock market recovery a sure foundation.
As for the various groups, the industrialists are looked upon with the greatest favor. Among these, besides the store stocks, the oils have found friends. Chemical stocks have been well bought. Although the statistical evidence is against them, the motors have met support. All the time there is a withdrawal from the floating supply of oddlots bought and paid for, continuously strengthening the position.

Summing it up—granted only that no unexpected adverse news is encountered—the constructive party believes at the weekend that the market ought to extend its recovery.

BORAH'S VIEWS NOT SUGGESTED BY PRESIDENT

But Attitude Is Believed Not Materially Divergent from Hoover's

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington —Neither the White House nor the department of state inspired or suggested the remarks of Senator Borah in his interview with the French correspondents late Friday afternoon.

The chairman of the foreign relations committee made this plain when he was told that several of the French correspondents had said the interview was pre-arranged by the state department and with the knowledge of President Hoover.
"There was no suggestion," said the Idaho senator, "from the White House or the state department. The interview was arranged at the request of the French correspondents themselves and I made it clear I was expressing my personal views only. I received no inspiration whatsoever or suggestion from the president or anybody else."
During the course of his interview Mr. Borah had told the French correspondents that he believed an all-around cancellation of war debts and reparations was possible under certain conditions and that he believed there could be no disarmament until the injustices wrought by the Versailles treaty on boundaries had been corrected. For, he said, the treaty would have to be revised by peaceful means or by war and that obviously there could be no security until the uncertainty was removed.

Touches Sensitive Spot
To the extent that Mr. Borah favored cancelling debts with the exception of the so-called unconditional payments due France, he pleased the French newspapermen immensely. When he criticized the Versailles treaty he, of course, touched a sensitive spot, for the French think any discussion or revising the treaty encourages the Germans and stirs up an agitation that had best subside for a while. In fact it has been suggested that a political truce for ten years would be advisable while the status quo is maintained.

Mr. Borah has had several conferences in recent weeks with the president and the secretary of state. While naturally they would not essay to tell the Idaho senator what he could or could not say publicly, for after all he speaks as chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate, it is true that Mr. Borah would not choose a moment as critical as the present to express any view that was materially divergent from that of the president.
As a matter of fact the Borah interview emphasizes what has been known for some time, namely, that the Hoover-Laval conference could not touch on the political questions of Europe specifically and that all that might be done would be a general declaration to assure peace by strengthening the interpretations of the Kellogg-Briand treaty.

Official Attitude
What Mr. Borah has said undoubtedly reflects a general feeling in official quarters in Washington, including the state department, that as long as such troublesome questions as the Polish corridor remain

2 DEMOCRATS FAVOR LARGE CREDIT FUND

Senators Glass and Bulkley Ask 2 Billion for Relief Program

Washington —(AP)—Government aid—two billion dollars worth—in loosening the frozen securities of the nation's banks is the proposal of two Democratic leaders for supplementing President Hoover's emergency program.
Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, announced he would call the senate banking sub-committee together ahead of the meeting of congress to consider this gigantic relief plan of Senator Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio. He favors it.

The program purposes absorption of the vast bulk of real estate security and loans on bonds and stocks which are "freezing" America's banks. Under it, the two billion dollars or more which might be necessary for the federal land banks rediscunt these securities would be raised by the government through a bond issue.

Whether this government financing venture would be made a permanent or an emergency affair was left to congressional deliberation.
But both Senators Glass and Bulkley emphasized that the program contemplated no "tampering" with the federal reserve system to meet the present emergency. This step was suggested in the program of President Hoover calling for a broadened base for paper which is eligible for rediscunt by the federal reserve bank.
Announcement by Senator Glass that he would call his senate banking sub-committee together about Nov. 20 foreshadowed early consideration by congress of the emergency banking relief proposals already before the country.

Both Influential
Senator Bulkley is the other Democratic member of this sub-committee. Both he and Glass as members of the house helped frame the federal reserve act and their voices will have strong influence on the congressional deliberations.

The Democratic program intends no interference with the Hoover emergency plan agreed to at a bipartisan conference in the White House, except for the strict limitation on opening the doors of the federal reserve system to a new brand of paper.

Meanwhile, Mr. Hoover called in a group of bankers yesterday to determine the progress which the emergency $500,000,000 credit corporation is making.

Mortimer N. Buckner, New York banker; George Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank; George M. Reynolds, of Chicago; Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker; Undersecretary Mills of the treasury, and Governor Meyer of the federal reserve board, attended the White House breakfast.

Bulkley's View
Senator Bulkley, with the support of Glass, suggested the federal land bank system for administering the relief rather than spending time in the organization of new organization. He would permit the banks to purchase or rediscunt loans made on "real estate security, either agricultural or urban, or even permit them to purchase or rediscunt loans based on bonds and stocks."
Believing $2,000,000,000 or more necessary to finance the program, Bulkley conceded this would require a government bond issue.

"If there are objections to more bonds and to higher interest rates on government bonds," he said, "it may be said that such issues offer a greater chance than anything else to draw currency out of hoarding, and that the proceeds would be certain to be invested at a profit, because no bank which might be accommodated by being relieved of its low assets would have legitimate cause to complain of being charged substantially for this accommodation."

Small chance for closed mink season

Expect Denial of Petition Recently Forwarded to Madison

The petition recently forwarded to Madison asking for a closed season on muskrats and mink in Outagamie-co will probably be denied, according to information received this morning from that state capital. The conservation commission has the authority to declare closed season on any variety of game in case of emergency, but investigations conducted throughout the county by Game Warden Albert F. Dunham and L. H. Boomer of Oshkosh and Louis Jeske of Appleton failed to convince the commission that an emergency exists at the present time. The petition is also regarded as coming too soon after the last session of the legislature which passed laws declaring an open season on muskrat and mink in Outagamie-co and to which no objection was made by local trappers at the time.

The commission further feels that if nature cooperates a bit more and we have a few more heavy rains, whatever danger there is of muskrat depletion will be greatly minimized. Conditions have been abnormal for more than a year, resulting in the increase of many species of game and in the depletion of other species. Conditions are returning to normal and the commission does not think Outagamie-co has been as hard hit as many of the local trappers believe.

GIVE 'EM NOISE

New York-Americans must have noise with their meals, a local cafeteria proprietor opines. After enjoying considerable patronage, the owner decided to increase his business by increasing much of the din about his place in installing a sound-proof ceiling and walls. But instead of increasing his business he has been hit by the noise. He is getting thinner every performance—and the show continues until New Year's.

HERE'S SURE SYSTEM TO LOSE

London—Gifford Gwyther, actor, has a system for reducing weight that never fails. While effective, it is rather strenuous and a trifle hard on the back.

No, it's not bonding exercises. It consists of being flogged with a whip on the bare back every night and two afternoons a week. On this schedule, which Gwyther recommends to any corpulent person, he lost 17 pounds.

In explanation: Gwyther is the hero of the play, "Nina Rosa," each performance of which required that he be lashed across his bare back with a stockwhip by an actress in the play. "It doesn't hurt any more," he explains. "You see, my back is calloused where I've been hit with the whip handle. I'm getting thinner every performance—and the show continues until New Year's."

Tolerate Loyalties Of Child

BY ANGELO PATRISI

"I see. You're about half the problem right. Fifty per cent. You're from Miss Ruby's class, aren't you? Well, maybe you'll learn in time. In this class 50 per cent won't do. Just get that idea out of your head right now. Maybe you could do that in Miss Ruby's room but you can't do it here."

"Didn't you ever learn anything in the other school? What do they do there anyway? If you want to stay in this school you'll have to do something beside sit in a bench. We work here."

"Maybelle, pick up those things and put them where they belong. Remember it isn't your mother that's dealing with you now. She let you get away with everything. I have my work out for me. I can see that. By the time she gets back I hope you'll know a lot of things you don't know now."

That sort of thing is a grave mistake. Children are loyal. Then they are steadfast. When you challenge their loyalties you stir up a whole series of associated oppositions to yourself. Any good you may have to offer is lost in the emotional storm you have created. All the child hears is your affront to those he loves. Every feeling of kinship is stirred to do battle for an outraged cause.

With the feeling of outrage comes the other bitter feeling—helplessness. Children are really helpless in the hands of their elders. The teacher, the close relative, the one to whom a little brief authority has been delegated, hold his fate in their hands. All he can do is storm and rave and promise himself to get even by and by.

Such struggles leave scars. They set trends of thought that become habits of conduct. The once happy child becomes sullen, rebellious, impudent, mischievous and a thorn in the flesh. He is ingenious about finding ways to annoy. He is cunning in his plans for revenge. All this because a well meaning adult took the wrong way with a helpless child.

When you face a child in a new situation, tread softly. Watch and listen to the signs he makes. Let him give you the lead. Go with him a little way so that he will go with you a long way. Win his confidence before you venture to make any change in his way of doing.

Children who find themselves in strange schools, or in strange homes, are at a great disadvantage. They have lost their hold on things. They are afraid and very lonely. Give them a chance. Let them do things in their own way. Put all the friendliness possible into your tone and action. Teach the child that he can depend upon you. Then go ahead.

It is a great mistake to challenge a child's loyalties. His own family, his own school, his own country, his own religion, these are as much a part of him as his teeth and hair. For anyone to belittle them and give pain to a heart already wounded, is to be cruel indeed. Make much of the child's loyalties and you are his friend for life. He follows his friends. Who does not?

WOMAN AND CHILD DENYING OFFICERS

Idaho Cabin Besieged by Sheriff's Men Seeking to Serve Warrant

Bay View, Idaho—(P)—A strange starvation siege entered its third day today with Mrs. Floyd May and her eight-year-old child still defying with a high-powered rifle a detachment of sheriff's officers who waited outside their cabin.

Mrs. May is sought on a warrant charging she is insane. Fog and rain shrouded the scene.

Sheriff Henry Traue said he would not order his men to rush the cabin, since hunger would do the work as effectively and he did not want to take the chance of injuring the woman and child.

Police said Mrs. May stole the rifle, a large quantity of ammunition and a car, and then took refuge in her cabin, which had been abandoned by a logging crew. Officers threw tear gas and smoke bombs at her for hours.

She replied with a shot for every bomb, then fled out the back door and into the brush, shooting at every officer who stuck his head above the bushes.

Eventually she was chased into another cabin, and a detail of sheriff's men picked the place, counting on her lack of provisions and firewood to make her give in.

"She's a darned good shot," one officer said, "and we see no sense in running up against the rifle. We don't want to fire at a woman, either, although she has fired between 40 and 50 shots."

Her new fortress is on Cedar Creek, one mile north of Lakeview.

Finds Husband

Mrs. Helen Hamilton Robeson and Rodman Robeson, the husband she met in the Los Angeles Missing Persons Bureau after she thought he had been dead since 1912, are shown here. Robeson, who is listed in the Boston Social Register, at first did not recognize his wife, but later said he had been divorced from her.

WOMAN TRAINING FOR OCEAN FLIGHT

Expects to Hop from Tokio to Seattle and Then to Dallas

New York—(P)—The farmer lad who lifted a growing calf each day until finally he could lift a cow has an aerial counterpart in Juanita Burns, aviatrix.

Miss Burns hopes to fly alone from Tokio to Seattle and then to Dallas next spring, and here is how she plans to get ready for the strain: She will sit down beside a roaring airplane engine. When she begins to get drowsy, she will shut off the motor and call it a day. The next day she will sit a little longer—and so on until she can stay awake 40 hours or so.

That idea and other details of the proposed flight were explained by the 25-year-old Los Angeles girl's brother, Joseph Martin broker and aviation enthusiast.

Martin, who comes from Los Angeles, said Miss Burns will start from Tokio next April with a light load of gasoline. A male aviator will go up with her and help fill her plane's fuel tanks to capacity from a refueling ship. Then the aviator will jump out in a parachute, while Miss Burns speeds out over the Pacific toward Seattle, which she hopes to reach over the "great circle" course without a stop.

She plans to collect $28,000 in prizes at Seattle, then go on to Dallas to get $25,000 more. Martin said he had assurances that Col. William E. Easterwood, Jr., coloring gum king, who gave Coast and Bellote $25,000, would present Miss Burns a similar prize if she is successful.

She hopes to come to New York—and perhaps fly to Paris. Miss Burns, who formerly lived in El Paso, is auburn-haired and has "the courage to show what a woman can do in aviation if given a break."

Her ship will be called the "Miss Olympia 1932" in honor of the Olympic games to be held at Los Angeles next summer.

Illinois sheep this year produced 4,960,000 pounds of fleece compared to 4,662,000 last year. The weight per fleece increased from 7.4 to 7.7.

JOSE Laval STILL DETERMINED TO SEE U. S. FOOTBALL GAME

Washington—(P)—"With one deep determination—"to come back and see my football game"—the lovable M. Jose Laval will sail back toward France tonight.

The premier's daughter, whose football appointment was so badly upset that even Mrs. Herbert Hoover could not right it, revealed her hope to return as she bade farewell to the capital early today.

"I have heard," she said, "that there is another game between the Navy and the Army on Dec. 12. How I wish I could be there! But I will come back, and then I will see."

She was wistful instead of simply disappointed, for but a few hours earlier she had heard all about the Navy-Princeton game she had missed from a hero of the clash.

Lou Bryan, handsome midshipman tackle and roommate of Laval, told the girl how disappointed he was at his fellows when she failed to show up for a round of greetings.

How Shade Needs?

ST. MARY HIGH BEATS OSHKOSH ELEVEN, 26 TO 7

Menasha Team Scores Two Touchdowns in First Quarter of Game

Menasha—Scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter, the St. Mary high school grid squad swamped the St. Peter high school eleven of Oshkosh 26 to 7 in a conference clash at the city ball park here Saturday afternoon and remained undefeated in league play. The Menasha grid-ders scored twice in the first period and twice in the third.

With Pruchnoffski leading the attack, the St. Mary team started a march down the field early in the first period and after a few moments hit the ball on the five yard line. Plunging through over center, Pruchnoffski crossed the tape for the first touchdown. His attempted plunge for extra point was unsuccessful.

Gaining steadily on plays through the St. Peter line, the St. Mary team scored again later in the same period, with Pruchnoffski again taking the ball on a line yard off tackle and Pruchnoffski for the touchdown. His plunge for extra point was good.

Oshkosh Then Scores
The Oshkosh team scored its only touchdown late in the first quarter on a sensational run by Prickett, St. Peter quarter back. Snaring one of Riesel's punts on his own 82 yard line, Prickett ran through an open field 66 yards, for a touchdown. The kick for extra point was good. Neither team scored during the second quarter, and the half ended with the Menasha squad leading by a 13 to 7 count.

A series of passes brought the St. Mary team into scoring position again in the third quarter and Stip, a half back, plunged over the line, five yards, for the third Menasha touchdown. A pass, Riesel to Coopman, was good for the extra point. The fourth touchdown was scored in the same period when Munther broke through the St. Peter line and blocked a punt. The ball rolled back over the Oshkosh goal line, and Ciske Menasha back, fell on the ball. A pass was attempted for extra point but failed.

The fourth period was scoreless, and in the closing minutes of play the visitors opened an attack that brought the ball within five yards of the Menasha goal line as the game ended.

LAVAL FETED IN NEW YORK ON WAY HOME

Conversations With Hoover Expected to Help Lighten World's Debts

ish and French official texts into thoroughly harmless diplomatic phrase. The task of fitting the right word into the right place took so much time and patience that when it was finished Undersecretary Mills announced out of the depths of a great relief "this child is born."

Details Lacking
After all the rewriting and correcting, the statement was almost completely denuded of details. It declared "real progress" had been made. It expressed a joint hope that the February arms conference would "take advantage of the great opportunity," and that the way had been paved to "real action."

Behind these general expressions of accord, however, lay the untold story of an interesting three days of history.

From the beginning, M. Laval made a good impression on the American officials. They found him direct, but not lacking a sense of humor. They spoke to him and were spoken to by him with a frankness often lacking in diplomacy. The conversations were handicapped far less than might be supposed by the fact that M. Laval speaks no English, and President Hoover little French. Able interpreters kept the talk going, and Secretary Stimson now and then drew on his limited French vocabulary to emphasize a point.

Almost as soon as they came together last Friday, the president and Premier Laval agreed the way to start talking about economic recovery was by talking about relieving Germany. The Hoover debt holiday, under which the German reparations payments are suspended for the next two years, is now a realized Germany will be little better able to pay next June than she was last June.

The French set great store by the Young plan adopted in 1929 for the regulation of these reparations. It has been held up as a French bulwark of uncommon importance. M. Laval insisted that if any change was to be made in the German reparations situation, it must be through the machinery already established under this plan.

In the Young plan is a provision that whenever Germany finds the burden too great to bear, she may give 90 days' notice and suspend payments temporarily. Automatically, a non-governmental committee, including one American named by the federal reserve system, would be set up to reassess Germany's ability to pay.

Expect German Action
This provision Germany is expected soon to invoke, and with the scaling down in German payments to the allies will come a reopening of the whole question of reparations to this country. Presumably President Hoover will ask congress to authorize American experts to reassess the ability of the debtors to meet their bills under the changed conditions.

The talks between Mr. Hoover and his distinguished guest were directed to the one subject of economic recovery, although the unsettled political situation in Europe came into the discussion by virtue of its economic repercussions.

The United States would like to see these political troubles cleared away, but it made no proposals for their solution. A report that settlement of the troublesome Polish corridor problem had been suggested by the general secretary in an official White House statement.

M. Laval left Washington early today for New York, where he will embark tonight for France. A round of receptions, including a splendid gathering last night at the French embassy, occupied most of his last day in the capital. His parting sentiments were repeated in speech and interview and in a brief greeting over the radio, was one of renewed and enduring friendship for America.

Missouri's bill redistricting the state to eliminate one representative was vetoed by Farmer-Labor Governor Olson. It was ordered promulgated, however, by the legislature and has been upheld by the state supreme court.

New York's Republican legislature did not submit to Democratic Governor Roosevelt its plan allocating territory to two new representatives and the measure's legality is now before the courts.

Status in Missouri
In Missouri, a Democratic legislature has vetoed a Republican governor's veto to order the promulgation of its method of slicing three members from the state's congressional delegation.

The state faces the prospect of electing all 13 representatives at large.

Should the same rule apply to the state of convention delegates, party leaders expect Missouri to bring new influences to the nominating assemblies, giving metropolitan areas unusual strength and perhaps revising the state's prohibition vote.

An ultimate ruling of unconstitutionality against Minnesota's resolution would force her to show representatives to campaign over the entire state, but in the case of New York, it is expected only the two additions would be elected at large.

Lack of state action so far apparently means that the one additional representative each, assigned Florida, Connecticut and Oklahoma, and the two assigned Ohio to large districts, will be elected at large. The two members remaining to North Dakota will do likewise.

Wisconsin, which drops one representative, and Texas, which gains three, have not yet redistricted. Special sessions to do the job are forecast in both states.

Other states involved in reapportionment changes were legislatures in Mississippi, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Virginia and South Carolina. Illinois' representation was not changed by the 1930 census but the state has fixed districts in Chicago for the two seats-at-large already existing.

States which have redistricted with approval of their governors include Alabama, California, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nebraska, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Washington and Vermont.

North Dakota tests have shown that feed cost is about half the total cost of producing milk with the average dairy cow.

"OVER-EMPHATIC" WORDS INTERRUPT BADGER BROADCAST

Philadelphia—(P)—Two "damns" and one "hell" were blamed today by J. P. Begley, announcer for Radio Station WELK, for cutting off a broadcast from the University of Wisconsin football banquet Saturday night. WELK was the station that cut off Major General Smedley D. Butler last April for using "Hell" in an address.

George Little, athletic director of the Badger school, and Hugh L. Jamieson, president of the New York chapter of the Wisconsin alumni, were responsible for the "damns" and a third speaker used the "hell," Begley said.

The descriptive remarks followed discussion of the Wisconsin-Pennsylvania game which the Badgers dropped, 27 to 13.

Begley denied the station cut off George Lewis, business manager of the team, because he referred to the absence of Senator Robert M. La Follette as caused by the imminent "increase in the LaFollette family." News reports state the senator and his life are awaiting an accouchement.

"They can talk about that all they want to," Begley said, "but there's nothing wrong with that. Little and Jamieson used the word 'damn' and another speaker said 'hell' and that accounts for three interruptions, to the broadcast."

"We avoided terming the speakers' remarks 'profane' or 'obscene,'" Begley said, "but we apologized to our listeners for their over-emphatic statements."

NEW DISTRICTS BRING

BULL DOGS WHIP SHAWANO GRID TEAM, 20 TO 0

Swede Johnson Shines in Plunging, Passing and Punting

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Playing before a crowd of about 600 persons, the Bull Dogs rode rough shod over the Shawano Redskins in a football game here Sunday afternoon, 20 to 0. Swede Johnson stole the whole show by his line plunging, passing and punting, and finally capped the climax by grabbing a pass and diving over the goal line. Wrunko, as usual, blocked a punt and allowed the ball to drop into Ladwig's hands, and Much walked over the goal line. The Bull Dogs' other touchdown came after a punt was blocked on the 25 yard line and recovered by Laabs. The Swede hammered his way from there on over the goal line. The team also made two points when Harties, Shawano full back, fumbled a punt and was tackled over the goal line. The game opened with Shawano punting after they had received the kickoff. Dutch Much picked a hole and started for a 25 yard gallop. Johnson then ran the end for a first down, being tackled by Briese. The locals lost their ball in Shawano territory when their pass was intercepted. Both teams kept punting with Shawano having the best of the argument. The quarter ended with the ball in the visitor's territory. After an interchange of punts the Bull Dogs worked the ball to Shawano's 12 yard line, only to lose the ball on a pass. The Swede then tried to punt out of danger, but Wrunko broke through and Ladwig caught the ball, going over for 6 points.

Laab's place kick was no good as it hit the cross bar. Two more points were added when Harties fumbled a punt and was tackled over his goal line.

After the kick off New London gained possession of the ball when Bannock blocked a punt and Laabs caught the ball. Johnson, after two unsuccessful passes, hit the line for a good gain.

Victors Score Again
Charlesworth ripped through for a long run and the Bull Dogs were on their way to a second touch down. Four plays were enough for the Swede to go over the line. Laab's attempted place kick was blocked. Just before the end of the half New London intercepted a pass after Harties had kicked the ball. Johnson made a first down on two plays and Laabs ripped off 9 yards, only to find that both teams were off side.

Both teams drew a 15 yard penalty when the Redskins end man roughed up one of the Bull Dogs on a triple pass play. New London drew a 15 yard punishment when Ladwig waved his hands unisely. In the last quarter Shawano started gaining ground on passes. After intercepting Johnson's pass Schroeder made 40 yards for the visitors on a perfect pass play. This ended their threat for the time being. After a few minutes Schroeder again caught a long pass which played ended the Red Skin menace. After punting Johnson, Charlesworth and Laabs picked up 25 yards for two first downs. Two more plays netted 9 yards after which the Bull Dogs kicked into Shawano territory.

Shawano drew two passes advanced the ball to the center of the field, only to have Wrunko intercept and run the ball back 15 yards. The Steam roller made 30 on the play, but stepped out of bounds while running. Ladwig caught a 15 yard pass and Laabs twice went over the left side for a 12 and a 15 yard plunge.

After 20 seconds left to go Laabs decided to pass and heaved the clear across the lot to Johnson. The latter caught it on a dead run and dove over the line. The game ended immediately after the kickoff.

No individual players stood out in the New London line and no first downs were made through the team in the backfield. Much, Laab, Charlesworth and Johnson had things their own way, making plenty of yardage when necessary. Pete Briese started good for Shawano but retired early in the game when his side was injured. Harties was practically the entire backfield, and Schroeder showed himself as one of the best ends in the league with his clever snaring of passes. Christianson also spoiled many of the Bull Dogs' plays by grabbing a whole of a game at tackle.

RED AND WHITE GRIDDERS TIE W. DE PERE, 6-6

New London Makes More First Downs from Scrimmage, but Passes Are Weak

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Turning in their best game of the year, New London high school team held the much touted heavy West DePere team to a 6 to 6 tie game here Saturday afternoon. The Red and Whites made more first downs from scrimmage, but their passing attack did not approach that of the visitors. The only time their aerial attack functioned, it led to Walmer's plunging over for a touchdown in the last quarter. West DePere's points were also earned in two passes put the ball in a scoring distance. The home team was outwitted in the line, while the backfield was nearly 15 pounds lighter than the visitors.

After West DePere fumbled after the kickoff Noak started going places when he went for a first down. A fake netted 15 yards after which New London was forced to punt. Skenedore made a first down for the visitors on an end run. Again DePere fumbled, but this time they also had to punt. Both teams kept punting until West DePere on two end runs, made a first down. This was about the end of West's famed running attack. Farrell, who played a whale of a game, broke through to smear Skenedore. Garot broke into the linebacker by partially blocking a punt, giving New London possession of the ball just before the end of the first quarter.

Held on downs the ball went to West which, after losing ground, booted a 60-yard punt. New London made their downs being aided by a 5 yard penalty. DePere's punt went out of bounds on DePere's 10 yard line, and Beaugard backed up to shoot a 25 yard pass to Skenedore near the half way mark.

Both teams kept up their punting duel with the half ending on DePere's 30 yard line.

Wait For Breaks
Right after the kickoff DePere made two end runs which carried the ball to New London's 20 yard line. Line plunges were no good, and Ebert smeared up an attempted end run, giving the ball to New London on downs. Both teams tried a punt, and after Walmer had fumbled DePere tried two passes, which were grounded. When the third quarter was held, which was good for 20 yards, Noak and Walmer then carried the ball and on two pretty plays in which they picked their holes they had the ball on the 5 yard line. Noak hit the line for 2 yards, Walmer hit it for 1, and again Russ hit it to find himself over the goal line. Farrell's drop kick was no good for the extra point.

The visitors came back fighting mad and Dufect shot two passes to Skenedore which put the ball on the 30 yard line. A long end run by Beaugard carried the ball to the Red and Whites 6 yard line. Aided by a 5-yard penalty Skenedore dove over the New London left side of the line for 6 points. Beaugard's end run was unsuccessful for the extra point. DePere pulled a fast one on the kickoff, advancing the ball only a few yards and immediately dropping on it. However the trick failed to aid as only two more plays could be completed before the end of the game.

Both teams were well matched according to size and speed, although the local players outpunted the visitors. # 102 Years Old, Voorhis Reluctantly Quits Job

BY DONN SUTTON
New York—The only battle that "the Grand Old Man of Tammany Hall" ever lost has been won by his friends.

John R. Voorhis, at the age of 102, has been induced to retire.

But it's not without a show of the fighting spirit which bore him through seven decades of political struggle that Tammany's amazing Grand Sachem is giving up his job as president of the New York Board of Elections.

"I did not want to resign," he said, as he sat in the old-fashioned parlor of the ancient three-story red brick house which he himself helped to build in Greenwich Village. "I simply said I was willing to do as the city authorities wished. I'm certainly not too old to work. Even when I don't feel well, I get my work done at home."

No Pay For "Nothing"
Voorhis is to be retired on full pay—$8000 a year—for life. That was provided for by the New York state legislature in September. And it took another strenuous argument on the part of his friends because he did not want to accept this pension for "doing nothing."

"Live right—live long," is the formula which Voorhis has been giving to inquiring newspaper reporters for the last 30 years. And he sometimes adds: "Don't overeat. Over-eating kills more people than over-drinking."

It's only in the last two years that Voorhis has not regularly lived up to his schedule of breakfasting at 6:30, reading the newspapers for an hour, then walking to the subway station and proceeding to his office for a full day of work.

Not until last year did he stop his daily visits to the grocer's and butcher's to buy the day's provisions. He quit smoking at 88. In his 90's, he still liked to run his lawn mower and tinkered in the carpenter shop in the rear of his lot. He gave up the straight razor and took to the safety at 85. He never, to this day, has worn glasses. He has had only one vacation in 90 years—a three-week trip to the Pacific Coast. Twenty years ago, Mayor Gaynor refused to reappoint him to the Board of Elections because he was too old.

Longevity Wasn't Goal
"I didn't set out to live to be more than 100," he says. "All I set out to do was earn a living, mind my own business and do my duty as it came along."

The machinations of Boss Tweed's ill-famed ring lured Voorhis from his contractor's office into public life. He wanted to fight Tweed and to prove, by going into politics himself that "a man can go into politics and still remain honest."

After the downfall of Tweed, Voorhis took office as Excise Commissioner for 18 years, was a police justice and has held several other municipal offices.

His Views On World
Today, retiring from the public scene, he thinks about things in general: "Politics are cleaner than they used to be. . . . The morals of young people today are not good. . . . If you have a poor opinion of yourself, don't let it be known publicly. . . . It isn't necessary to have an expert say what's wrong with you; you should know yourself. . . . The young men must carry on."

And about himself: "I wish people wouldn't worry about me. . . . I don't know just how I'll spend that $8000 a year—nor how long I'll be drawing it. . . . No, I don't. I'll just stay in the house and do nothing—for the rest of my life."

YELLOWJACKETS IN PRO GRID UPSET AS THEY DEFEAT BEARS

Cagle Leads Giants to 27 and 0 Victory Over Brooklyn Dodgers

CHICAGO (AP)—The Philadelphia Yellowjackets scored a mild upset yesterday by defeating the Chicago Bears, 13 to 12, in a National Professional league football game at Wrigley field.

After Herb Josting had scored in the second period, only to have the Bears tie the score at 6-all, Mort Kaer raced 85 yards from scrimmage to score in the third session. Trackwell placed kicked for the winning point. The Bears counted in the second period when Nagurski plunged four yards over the goal line. He fumbled but Lysman, Bear linebacker, recovered for a touch-down.

The Bears, aided by Red Grange's 43-yard run, took the lead at Philadelphia's one-yard line, only to be held. Nagurski scored the other Bear touchdown early in the final period, plunging over after passes had put the ball in scoring position.

Cagle Leads Giants
New York (AP)—Led by Chris Cagle, former Army all-American half back, the New York Giants defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers 27 to 0 at the Polo Grounds here yesterday.

The Giants scored two touchdowns almost before the 22,000 fans on hand had been seated. A pass, Smith to Burnett, brought the first, and a few minutes later Cagle slipped through the 25-yard line for the second.

In the third period, Wycoff, Giant fullback, intercepted a pass and ran 72 yards to a touchdown. The final Giant score came in the last period when Burnett lugged the ball over flowing a sustained drive down the field.

Cards Win
Moline, Ill. (AP)—The Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football league paraded to a 45 to 13 victory over the Green Bush club of Rock Island, Ill., yesterday piling up 23 first downs.

Spartans 20, Staples 7
Staten Island, N. Y. (AP)—The Portsmouth Spartans defeated Stapleton, 20-7 to maintain their undefeated record in the National Professional Football league yesterday.

The score was tied at 7-7 until the closing minutes of play when Portsmouth put over two touchdowns in quick succession. Frenell, Spartan fullback, scored the first of these on a 20-yard dash off tackle. The other came when Schwartz intercepted a pass and dashed away for a score.

Stapleton tallied first when Rapp blocked a punt in the first period and Kanya fell on the ball over the goal line. Strong kicked goal. In the second period, Stapleton tied the score. A series of forward passes carried the ball down the field and Dutch Clark, former Colorado college star, slipped off tackle for the touchdown. He added the point with a drop-kick.

Sports Question Box

Q.—To whom should application be made to join a minor league team?
A. Write direct to the club.

A.—The referee decides the matter in accordance with his best judgment.

Q.—We have a ground rule in our league that always allows the batter to go to first base if the catcher misses the third strike. Is that rule legal?
A.—If it is a uniform rule it applies alike to all clubs of the league and is legal to that extent. It is not in conformity with the baseball rules.

CORNELL LOSES TO MONMOUTH, 7 AND 0

Mount Vernon Iowa — Monmouth college of Illinois remained in the undefeated class in the Mid-West conference race Saturday by defeating Cornell college, 7 to 0.

A 65-yard return of a punt by Corgnatti, crack Soot back, with less than a minute of the first half remaining, accounted for the only score of the contest.

BADGERS HAPPY IT WASN'T A BIG 10 CONTEST SATURDAY

Washington (AP)—Only one consolation stood out today for the University of Wisconsin football team concerning its defeat, 27 to 13, at the hands of the University of Pennsylvania Saturday—the score doesn't go down on Big Ten records and the Badgers remain undefeated in the conference.

The team left here yesterday on its way home, pledged to defeat its arch-rival, the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis next Saturday.

Errors and sluggish football in the first half—that's what Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite blames for the defeat.

"The minute the reserves got in it was a different story," Thistlethwaite said. "Gee, how I wanted to start the reserves. If they had taken the field in the first quarter and permitted Penn to score as early as did the regulars, there would have been a howl heard clear around the world. The first team didn't have the pep."

ST. JOHN ELEVEN WALLOPS KIMBERLY

Little Chute Team Scores at Will in Game With Paper-maker Squad

Little Chute—Whirling and smashing, running and passing for gain after gain, St. John eleven decisively defeated Kimberly here Saturday. Throughout the game the local team had little trouble keeping the visitors at bay. On only three occasions were the Kimberly players able to cross the 50 yard line.

Early in the first period Little Chute team received the oval and Jansen on a fake punt ran 36 yards for the initial score of the game. The try for the extra point was made by J. Lamers.

Kimberly received and managed to work its way into the Little Chute territory but again lost on downs. With the ball in their possession on the 20 yard line St. John ran around end for the second touchdown. Hammen carried the ball and was assisted by good interference. The kick for the extra point went wide.

The third score was made shortly before the close of the first half. Taking the ball away from the visitors on downs the locals began the attack by sending Jansen around end to the 20 yard line. Hammen on an off-tackle play gained 18 more. On the next play Jansen passed the oval to P. Wildenberg who was awaiting it over the goal line. The try for the extra point was not good. Score 19-0.

The second half opened with La May taking the ball on the kick-off. It was during the early part of this period the Kimberly eleven showed the strongest. Passes were frequently tried but most of them were incomplete. During this half the Chutes piled up two more scores. The first was made with little effort. Kimberly in possession of the ball on its own seven yard line fumbled. Wildenberg of the locals recovered. Hammen then plunged over the line for the fourth score. This time the visitors were more lucky in their try for the point and Lamers made the kick. The second score during this period was made by Jansen who intercepted a pass in the middle and took it across the goal line. The kick for the extra point was made.

Chicago (AP)—"Matchmaker" Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium, today had a date with the Illinois State Athletic commission, to seek approval for a 10-round bout between Primo Carnera, the huge Italian, and Euliano Uzcudun, the durable Basque.

The bout was all signed up for New York, but the New York state athletic commission refused approval because of the disparity in weight. Carnera would have a weight advantage of about 45 pounds over the Spaniard.

WEST BAYS DEFEAT OSHKOSH HIGH 26-6
Oshkosh — Before a homecoming crowd, West Green Bay high school defeated Oshkosh, 26 to 6, Saturday. Oshkosh scored after a series of line bucks and a well timed pass in the first quarter. A fighting Bay team came back and scored shortly afterward, using a passing attack that bewildered the Oshkosh team.

Early in the second half Green Bay scored its third counter on straight line plays, and a final pass to Wolfe, their runny receiver, who stepped across the goal in the closing minutes of play. Duclun, a Bay back, running behind, brought the last score.

POINT TEACHERS AND EAU CLAIRE TIE, 0-0
Eau Claire — Eau Claire and Stevens Point Teachers' college football teams tugged at each other futilely Saturday a stubbornly fought game ending in a scoreless tie.

At no time did either team make any impressive rush toward the other's goal. Play remained in mid-field most of the afternoon. In the closing moments both teams tried desperate forward passes. Some were effective but more were intercepted.

Many fumbles marred the game, the teams being about equal in this respect.

Wells drilled at New Orleans have encountered standing cypress stumps in as many as three successive horizons, some as deep as 610 feet.

MOUNTAIN TRIBES END FUED, BRING PYRENEES PEACE

Roncal Delegates Arrive Carrying Banner of Republican Spain

Pau, France (AP)—Two Pyrenees mountain tribes which have hated each other for centuries buried the hatchet this year under the influence of republican Spain.

Inhabitants of the Baretous valley in French Navarre have paid annual tribute to their Spanish neighbors, the Roncal people, for some thousand years. They did it grudgingly and the donor and the giver have never agreed why the exchange took place.

This year the Roncal delegates, headed by the mayor, came carrying the banner of republican Spain. This was too much for their republican French neighbors who decided to let bygones be bygones. They joined in singing the French national anthem.

This year's tribute was three calves. The reason for tribute is said by the French to be one thing and by the Spaniards to be another. The Baretous folk say they and their ancestors have paid it for pastures and springs which they used even though the lands belonged to the Roncals. The latter, however, claim the tribute is a sort of "conscience money" offered after the French had massacred a number of the Roncals.

Pay day, down as far as 1898, was a vexatious affair for the French. The Spaniards made it hot for them on that day; they came with rifles and shot over the border line. They decided to stop firing in 1898, however, and since then the mayors and delegates have met over a rock known as St. Martin's, and the tribute is passed in an elaborate ceremony.

Dressed in colorful native costumes, the mayors shake hands over the rock, the Spaniard's hand being uppermost, as the payment is made. But until this year there were no signs of brotherly love between the tribes.

The federal government will spend $105,804 this year on improvement of protection facilities in the Olympic National forest in Washington.

CITY AMBITIOUS FOR RANK AS INLAND PORT
Atlanta, Ga. (AP)—Augusta, Ga., a city of 60,000, has an ambition to compete with Houston, Tex., as an inland port.

Augusta, two hundred miles inland at the head of navigation on the Savannah river, hopes to bring the Atlantic ocean to her doorstep by dredging the channel to a depth of nine feet. Already a six-foot channel has been authorized by the government.

To demonstrate soundness of a nine-foot channel, Augusta is operating a river packet which carries 600 bales of cotton weekly to Savannah wharves at a rate of 75 cents per 500-pound bale.

LADY with a PAST BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Long struggle to learn the methods of social charm convinces Venice Muir that she cannot gain popularity. Venice has copper-colored hair, a lovely Rosetti face and tall, slim grace. But her eyes reveal her unsureness of herself and her mouth is immature and wistful. Venice has the additional asset of a mother who has won a firm place in New York society. Mrs. Muir tells Venice plenty of friends and plenty of invitations form the essence of life and that she must learn to be attractive. Venice is more interested in books than flirtation, and considers trying to write. At the Goodby's party, Venice sees once more she has neither lightness nor appeal, and the knowledge makes her nervous and dull. Lola Goodby, one of Venice's two real friends, comes to lunch the day after the party. Venice confesses her realization of her lack of success. "What makes one popular?" she asks Lola. There are various types of popularity, Lola tells her. "For instance?" Venice asks.

CUP CUSTARD LIFE
 GIRLS who are popular because they're naughty," Lola said. "They get invitations for everything except matrimony unless some one comes along who doesn't believe they are what they are. We wouldn't want that brand. Girls who are popular because they're such very good company. Me-thinks I'm one of them. You couldn't be that type, Venice. You're too naturally grave and self-conscious. You couldn't lose yourself in clubbiness, if you know what I mean."

"You are astute, Lola. I couldn't. I'd spoil the clubbiness by wondering at the time what the others were thinking about me. I can't help it. Isn't it queer? When I know myself what's wrong! The way I'm made I guess. After all, you can't get away from the way you're made. Go on. What other types?"

"The ones that have brains. That's your cue. The bright ones. You can't be heavy about it and you have to be quick."

"There you are," sighed Venice. "I can't be quick. What other types?"

"Yes - don't know. Sex appeal. I suppose. That's got to be born in you. I think. You can't either manufacture or cultivate it. If you do it's something horrid and obvious. You know, a vampire."

There was a silence. Venice brooded.

"When you get right down to it," she finally said, as though thinking out loud, "popularity is a mixture for which the exact recipe has never been discovered. You can guess at the ingredients but you don't know the proportions."

"Phew! Good girl. Let's let the discussion rest on that brilliant note. You always do tax my feeble intellect sooner or later. But, Venice dear, there really isn't any other game for girls except the society whirligig. Don't fool yourself. Courses and jobs and charities are only balms for the unpopular."

"It was lovely. Shaded lights and lots of flowers and Leo Reisman's orchestra. They play at the Central Park Casino, you know."

"Did you get any new beaux?"

"Oh, Venice, how exciting. What did they look like and what did they say to you?"

"One was tall and slim and dark; one fat; one a brilliant young - botanist. The dark one said I was beautiful, and the fat one said I was the most vivacious girl he'd ever met, and the botanist thought I had more than the average girl. Another 'How lovely. And I suppose you couldn't get around the room more than once without some one breaking in on you.'"

"Just about." Color, deeper than the firelight's painting, was creeping into Venice's cheeks. She saw herself this much sought after girl. She actually was having a better time now than at Lola's party, any party. She heard compliments in her ear. She felt a touch on her arm. Another partner. Her eyes lost their limpidity, became bright and happy. She gave a little start at the sound of Nolly's urgent voice.

At Lola's cocktail party, in the next installment, Venice meets some one who will strongly affect her life.

Human Side Of A Genius
Why Thomas A. Edison Was Unique Among America's Immortals
By Lemuel F. Parton

Copyright, 1931, by the Appleton Post-Crescent
Chapter III
About twenty miles north of Detroit, the north-bound local swung around a wide bend. If the old rattletrap hadn't hit this curve just as the boy in the baggage car was rounding up an exciting chemical experiment, the career of Thomas Alva Edison might have been different, and then again it might not. There were detours in the long and eventful journey, but they never took the traveler far from the main line.

At any rate, the train lurched around the turn and sent a blazing stick of phosphorus skidding across the dry splintered floor of the baggage car. The car was instantly ablaze. Tom ran back through the train, spreading the alarm. There was a screech of emergency brakes, and the baggage master, a dour and horse-faced old Scotchman, seized a mop and battered down the flames. Then he landed on Tom. It was this ear-boring that impaired Edison's hearing for life.

Tom's career in ruins—but for a moment only—managed to rescue a few precious bottles before the raging Scotchman pitched him off the train. A picture taken at about this time shows Tom as a round-faced lad with a broad grin, a baby-warped cap and a frazzled muffler knotted about his throat. With an indignant look, the 3.54 rattled down the track to oblivion. The Grand Trunk railway was later to take on the Edison storage battery, the Edison primary battery, and several other Edison devices, but history has neglected to tell the fuming old Scotchman in on all this.

Tom trudged on. The boy picked himself out of the clinders, gathered up his bottles and watched the fade-out of his chemical laboratory, his newspaper and his business. Mr. Clemens, then a tank town, was down the track a ways. Like Dick Whittington, Tom trudged on.

Unfortunately, little is known of J. V. Mackenzie, the station agent at Mt. Clemens. He was a kindly man and didn't mind the boy hanging around the station. Accounts differ, but it is recorded that Tom slept in the baggage room with his clothes on. He was always cheerful and happy where they were anything interesting going on, and never cared much where or how he slept. In his later years of fame and success he always slept in his clothes in a Pullman—too much trouble to undress, and much safer to keep your clothes on, he used to say.

One day, Mackenzie's baby sat babbling on the track, with a train roaring down on it. Here is perhaps the one Dick Merriwell touch in the Edison career. Tom snatched the infant off the track, with some risk to himself, and the grateful parent overwhelmed him with gratitude. He installed the smudgy lad, still messing with his bottles and powders, in a nice, clean room with dimly curtains in the nearby Mackenzie domicile, and then took him to the station and began teaching him telegraphy.

Knocking about railroad stations, Tom had studied telegraph instruments, loops, lines, batteries and the like, but had been only mildly interested in picking up the Morse code. There is no evidence that he ever indulged in self-analysis, but the record of his entire career shows that he could learn anything easily and quickly if it was incidental to some deeper purpose. Hence, he was an apt pupil in the telegraphic code, as he needed tools, material and leisure for further examination of these mysterious clicking and poundings—more exciting in Civil War days than in these days of multiplying scientific wonders.

Thus young Edison became a telegraph operator. It was a romantic business in those days, when the bearded Walt Whitman first began hymning the lusty democracy of the states. The humming wires carried fateful words. In the oncoming years, with soldiers swarming about the tank stations where Tom worked, with new frontiers being drawn,

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)
New York — (CPA) — Zanesville, Ohio, is entitled to some horn tooting and whistle blowing on her account, as the world's longest suspension bridge, spanning the Hudson at Fort Lee, N. J., is dedicated today, with bands, parades, fiestas, oratory and high hats.

Cass Gilbert, architect of the bridge, was born in Zanesville. His name finds no place among those of the broadcasting statesmen and generals who herald his beautiful vessel spider web. When Benvenuto Cellini unveiled his Perseus, Florentines surrounded his house in wild, delighted mobs. Times change.

Mr. Gilbert designed the Woolworth building, the New York customs house, the new $10,000,000 United States supreme court building, now building at Washington, the United States and Detroit public libraries, the Arkansas, Minnesota, Texas and West Virginia state capitols and many other beautiful and distinguished buildings, homes and churches throughout America. He will be 72 years old a month from today. He is cultured, urbane and doubtless indifferent about his non-participation in the bridge ceremonies. From the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he came to New York, opened an office, sold two opera tickets to feed his staff, and struck the up-bound trail with McKim, Meade and White.

William Burton Foshay, ex-Napoleon of public utilities, can now go back to his job in a Salda, Col., stone quarry. A Minneapolis jury has disagreed in the fraud trial of Mr. Foshay and his six associates, growing out of the $20,000,000 failure of his enterprises in 1929. Thereafter, Mr. Foshay picked up the quarry job.

In Columbia university he studied to be an artist, but got a job with a Tarrytown, N. Y., gas company instead. Landing stations on his ascent from then on were Wichita, Kansas, San Francisco, Portland, Ore. and Minneapolis. The W. B. Foshay Co., in the last city, reached out over the northwest, Canada, and Central America. Hymned by reporters as "the pacemaker of Wall Street," Foshay was a much sought oracle on finance. In May, 1921, he said: "Much of the speculation which the federal reserve board condemns is perfectly legitimate. We are really adjusting ourselves to a new method of financing and a new level of values." This was first-paged. Then the smash and back to the stone quarry.

It was a year ago last March when S. Sumner first moved against classic paintings, assailing some nude Rembrandts on public display.

and in the flux and adventure of reconstruction days, the key pounders enjoyed a cheerful vagabondia. Tom, in spite of the fact that he had been tapped for the Hall of Fame, was one of the crew. He chewed a formidable lump of twist tobacco, he rigged practical jokes, he loved to tell yarns, he chuckled happily over a joke, and slept peacefully and long on a pile of mail sacks or a truck. But these were not errant years. His genius kept him "hunching"—not generalizing or theorizing—about every phase and aspect of the world about him. There was quality of mysterious divination in his invention, the first of them, naturally, in telegraphy and electricity.

Mastering Morse, he was home for a spell, at Port Huron, and then helped right a line from the railway station to the town. Soon afterward, he moved on to his first regular job as telegraph operator at Stratford Junction, Canada on the Grand Trunk. Here he was a complete and utter failure—for reasons which probably made the destiny smile, knowing what she knew.

PRINCE OTTO MAY BE PROCLAIMED KING ON BIRTHDAY

France Using Influence to Bring About Enthronement in November

BY MILTON BRONNER

London — Ottochen—little Otto—Archduke Otto in imperialist circles—may become king of Hungary in fact as well as in claim next November when he celebrates his nineteenth birthday and what is more, may later be king of Austria as well, thus once more giving Europe the ghost of the old Austro-Hungarian empire.

That is the extraordinary rumor that has been running around Europe for the past few weeks. A year ago it looked like the chances of Ottochen to realize his own hopes, the dreams of his ambitious mother, the ex-Empress Zita, and the dying wish of his weak father, the late Emperor Karl, the last of the Hapsburg emperors, were worth just about one counterfeit dime. Today they are worth a half dollar of anybody's money.

And as usual, the villain of the piece in the gossip is republican France.

France's Activity

The Quai d'Orsay, as the French foreign office is called, never stops working for the continued and increasing hegemony of France. The last few weeks have witnessed some shining successes. The pro-Italian government of Hungary was brought down by French money and the pro-

French cabinet of Julius Karolyi substituted. Austria and Germany, by French financial and political pressure, were brought to heel and were compelled at the Geneva meeting of the League of Nations formally to proclaim that they had dropped the proposed economic, tax and tariff union of the two countries.

And, to top off things, France is in active negotiations with Russia to bring about peace pacts between that country and France and Poland. If brought off, the encirclement of Germany would be complete. Killing the proposed economic Union of Austria and Germany was a big victory for French policy. For if the union had gone through, it is believed political union would have followed, making a bigger Germany very dangerous for Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. When your correspondent was in Budapest this summer people close to Premier Bethlen told me that if the economic union of Austria and Germany came off, Hungary would inevitably be drawn within its orbit. The Austrians had a good argument. The peace treaties have left them with a little helpless country. Union with Germany would help them in many ways.

If France forbids that, the Austrians now ask what France is going to do for them. The cautious French hint is the envisagement of an ultimate union of Austria and Hungary. The latter today is a kingdom without a king. Admiral Horthy is the regent, the seat-warmer. If Ottochen were to become king it might be possible later for the Austrian legitimists, with France winking the other eye, to set aside the republic and make the Hungarian king also the Austrian king. It is significant that lately Ottochen has been in France and has been proclaiming to all and sundry his love for things French.

If this King Otto business is really being taken seriously by the French, they have one big obstacle to overcome. The Little Entente is composed of Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania. They are the succession states which inherited large slices of Austrian and Hun-

Cutting Capers with Louisiana's Governor

Here are some informal poses of Louisiana's colorful governor, Huey P. Long, who is again in the limelight as the result of attempts of Lieut. Gov. Paul N. Cyr, to assume the governorship. The many-sided governor is shown "dunking" corn bread, just an old southern custom; attired in his pajamas as he signs a bill proclaiming a "cotton holiday" among planters in the state, a move designed to boost prices; wearing a baseball uniform at a training camp, and acting as cheer leader at a football game. Long is to take office as U. S. senator within a short time and his foes claim that since he has already been elected to the senate he is disqualified as governor.

garlan territory. They have made it as the foremost plank of their joint platform that they would fight any time rather than allow a Hapsburg to rule in southeastern Europe once more. They are allies of France.

Mortgage on Crown

But the French would probably find means of bringing them to heel. Golden means. France has subsidized all of them so they could build up armies and air fleets. If and when France decides to favor Otto as its own little pet kingling, it can easily announce to the Little Entente that the golden stream from France to their coffers will cease, unless—

Outside of the money argument, the French would have another, viz., that it is better for France and better for the Little Entente to have Austria and Hungary standing on their own feet, than have them drawn within the orbit of a bigger and mightier Germany. It Ottochen were anointed king, France would see to it that it held a mortgage on his crown.

WELFARE WORK A LIFE "HOBBY" OF BANE, AID LEADER

National Director for President Hoover Has Solved Many Problems

Richmond, Va. — (AP) — "Looking stable before the horse is gone" is a practice of Frank Bane, national director of public welfare for President Hoover's unemployment relief organization.

Forethought has been a characteristic of the 33-year-old Virginia commissioner of public welfare in meeting the many social problems that have confronted him in Virginia and Tennessee, and as a member of Colonel Arthur Wood's national relief commission last year.

His manner is polite, but direct. He speaks briefly, but a few of his words usually tell a long story.

With a thoughtful gaze from beneath his closely trimmed blonde hair, the Virginia commissioner, after his new appointment, said:

"Last year 72 per cent of the relief came from public sources. In this year's emergency a large percentage of our relief must come from the same source."

He is a firm believer in preparedness.

Welfare work has been both hobby and business with him. Social problems were his favorites puzzles during undergraduate days at Randolph-Macon College.

He was the subject of his graduate work at Columbia University. He taught them at the University of Virginia. However, all his work has not been confined entirely to academic treatment of sociology.

His practical work has included the positions of secretary to the Virginia board of charities and corrections, director of public welfare in Knoxville, Tennessee. For the last six years he has been the Virginia commissioner of public welfare.

When the national crisis came with the combined drought and unemployment in the fall of 1930 Colonel Woods named Bane to assist in the work of the national relief committee.

KAUKAUNA HIGH GRIDDERS BEAT DE PERE, 20 TO 6

Seconds Also Win in Double Attraction Saturday Afternoon

Kaukauna — Kaukauna high school's football team swept the East DePere high school aggregation off its feet here Saturday afternoon to take a 20 to 6 Northeastern Wisconsin conference victory. Three Kaukauna quarterbacks, around whom most of the Kaw played functioned, scored the touchdowns for the Littlemen.

Schwendeman, who started at quarter for the Kaw, was responsible for the first Kaukauna touchdown early in the first quarter, when he crashed through the DePere right guard from the four yard plunge to score. A series of blocking stunts and runs was responsible for the pignin being on the four yard marker. Schwendeman kicked into the wind and the ball went wild, leaving the count at 6 to 0.

Schuler, who replaced Schwendeman in the second quarter, was the big ground gainer for the Kaw. The Kaukauna line was charging fast and two punts were blocked on DePere. Van Lieshout, left end for the Littlemen, was responsible for both blocked punts. Near the end of the quarter, Schuler scored the first Kaukauna touchdown, taking the ball over from the seven yard line. McCormick, fullback, kicked the extra point.

On the kickoff Nelson again kicked inside the DePere 10 yard line. Nelson, a tackle, was the big kicker for the DePere 10 yard stripe. DePere opened with passes, and Van Lieshout, left end for the Kaw, knocked the ball from Vande List's hand as Vande List poised to heave to Osen, recovering the ball for Kaukauna on the DePere 15. The half ended before any damage could be done.

DePere Finally Scores

Evidently inspired by a talk from Coach G. Brasher during the half interval, the Red and White clad DePere eleven made a strong comeback in the third quarter to score a touchdown and a passing game. Vande List spilled the Kaukauna right halfback to give Maternowski a clear field. Smith was unsuccessful in his plunge to the Kaukauna right guard for the extra point.

Ludke, who replaced Schuler at quarter during the third period skirted the DePere left tackle from the 10 yard stripe to give the Littlemen their last touchdown. Spuner plays featuring Kuchelmeister and McCormick, and a tackle plunge by Ludke were factors in bringing the ball to the 10 yard marker. Kuchelmeister went through the center of the DePere line for the extra point.

Near the end of the game, Kaukauna backed DePere up to their own goal line, then lost the ball on downs. DePere stalled with passes, and the game ended with the Kaw taking the ball on the DePere 25 yard line on downs. Kaukauna seconds defeated the DePere seconds 27 to 13 in the preliminary.

MERCHANT GRIDDERS DEFEAT HOLLANDTOWN

Kaukauna—Although outweighted, the Kaukauna Merchants football aggregation took a closely contested 13 to 0 win over the Hollandtown Hovellers at Hollandtown Sunday afternoon. Van Drasek, Merchant fullback, plunged over the Hollandtown goal to score the first touchdown in the opening period. A pass, Van Drasek to Derus, gave the Merchants the points after touchdown. Late in the third quarter the Merchants again scored, using an aerial offense. A pass, Van Drasek to Egan on the 30 yard line, was good for a touchdown. Gast of the Hollandtown outfit made a number of long gains, but the losers were unable to penetrate the Merchants defense to score.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE HOLE-IN-ONE AT CONTRACT

The Grand Court is a play in Bridge so rare and unusual that those who have an opportunity to make it enter the same select circle in their favorite mental recreation as the golfers who once in a lifetime make a hole-in-one. The play is rare for the reason that the cards are very infrequently so distributed as to give the opportunity for it and that even when such distribution occurs, the player fails to recognize that Fortune has singled him out for an unusual distinction.

All of the so-called coup plays at Bridge involve two elements. The first is using an end play to capture an adverse trump honor when there are no trumps in the Dummy hand to lead through this adverse honor, and the second is reducing the number of trumps in the closed hand to the same number as held by the opponent whose trump you seek to capture so that the closed hand will not have to trump prematurely and at the end concede a trump trick.

These elements are in all coups at Bridge. The term "Grand Coup" is used to describe the play in which the player uses the closed hand in order to accomplish this result. It is necessary to trump winning cards in the Dummy. Lack of sufficient entries in the Dummy frequently make even the simple coups impossible and lack of sufficient winning cards in the Dummy make the Grand Coup rare indeed. Their very rarity give these plays a tremendous value in the minds of Bridge players.

Catarhal Deafness May Be Overcome

If you have catarhal deafness or head noises go to Schlitz Bros., or your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parment (double strength) and add to it 1 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial. Adv.

JAILED MONARCHIST IS JINX CHAMPION

Madrid —(P)—Sebastian Castedo, last minister of economy under the Primo de Rivera dictatorship, has been dubbed the hard luck champion of Spanish politics.

He is in Madrid's model jail, awaiting trial as a result of an investigation by a congressional commission of Primo's regime. Castedo had been a minister only a few days when the dictatorship collapsed in January, 1929. He had been in office only long enough to spend a goodly sum for uniforms and regalia. The sole chance he had to wear this finery came when he took the oath of office and posed for a photograph.

When the republic's investigation began, Castedo was one of four monarchist ministers who had not fled to France. He and Galo Ponte, ex-minister of justice, were arrested. The other two were not molested.

Traveling Man Tells Health Secret

Philadelphia, Pa.—L. Lambertson of this city, traveling salesman, is widely known for his exuberant health. Knowing the hurried life travelers must lead, it is all the more surprising. Interviewed recently, Mr. Lambertson said "I find that travel, with its irregular hours and change of food, tends to constipate. For that reason, a bottle of Pluto Water is always in my bag. I find that it affords speedy relief, even in the most stubborn cases. I recommend Pluto to every man who travels a great deal."
